September 1994 OD 266, 140

CSP24.R14 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Having seen Document CSP24/19 on the Regional System for Vaccines (SIREVA);

Considering that vaccines are fundamental instruments for the implementation of programs to control and eradicate diseases preventable by immunization;

Bearing in mind that research for the technological development of new vaccines is the responsibility of the scientific community and national institutions;

Convinced that the development of new vaccines can stimulate biotechnology as part of the technologic development process;

Considering that only through technical cooperation among countries, based on joint efforts that bring together the technical and scientific experience, capacity, and potential of their institutions through a collaborative program for development within the Regional System for Vaccines, will it be feasible to produce the needed new vaccines and to make those that are already available more safe and efficacious; and

Recognizing the importance of guaranteeing the quality of the vaccines utilized in the Region through the strengthening of the national quality control laboratories for the vaccines and their organization into a Regional Network of Quality Control Laboratories,

Resolves:

1. To urge the Member States to:

(a) Define and give priority to a policy for the development of a regional system covering the development, production, quality control, and evaluation of vaccines of importance for public health;

(b) Revise and adjust the targets, strategies, and principal actions relating to epidemiological research on diseases preventable by vaccination; development, production, and quality control: and evaluation of new and improved vaccines;

(c) Promote policies and legislation that will commit national resources, mobilize investments, and foster technical, scientific, and financial cooperation among the countries of the Region in order to finance the work planned for SIREVA.

2. To authorize the Director to enter into negotiations and agreements with public and private institutions in order to promote the development, production, and marketing of vaccines in the Region in response to expressions of interest by the Member Governments.

3. To request the Director to:

(a) Support, within the limits of available resources, the basic activities of coordination and technical and scientific cooperation among the countries in the area of research and in the development, production, and evaluation of vaccines of high priority for the control of diseases preventable by immunization;

(b) Support, within the limits of available resources, the implementation of the Regional Network of Quality Control Laboratories, in order to guarantee the quality of the vaccines utilized in the Region:

(c) Assist in implementing research pursuant to the guidelines contained in the master plans formulated and approved by the Expert Committees of SIREVA, or for the development of specific immunizing agents;

(d) Promote a system for encouraging participation in research on vaccine development by as many official and private institutions as possible in the countries of the Region;

(e) Provide affiliated laboratories with access to scientific and technical knowledge developed within the Regional System for Vaccines and related to the production of vaccines, as long as these laboratories have facilities and production infrastructures that meet international requirements, and as long as they assume responsibility for the quality and proper use of the vaccines, pursuant to the guidelines of the Expert Committees of SIREVA;

(f) Discuss and come to an agreement on the transfer of technology among the participating parties, for which purpose PAHO/WHO will convene representatives of the Member States and the Expert Committees of SIREVA.

CSP24.R15 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Considering the revision made to the base/floor salary scale for the professional and higher categories of staff in graded posts, effective 1 March 1994;

Taking into account the decision by the Executive Committee at its 113th Meeting to adjust the salaries of the Deputy Director and Assistant Director (Resolution CE113.R20);

September 1994 OD 266, 142

CSP24.R16 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Having considered the progress report presented by the Director (Document CSP24/14 and Add. I) on implementation of the Expanded Program on Immunization and the Plan of Action for the Eradication of Wild Poliovirus from the Americas;

Noting with great pride that transmission of wild poliovirus appears to have been interrupted in the Region of the Americas, inasmuch as no cases have been reported in the three years since the detection of a case in Junín, Peru, on 23 August 1991;

Further noting that national and multinational initiatives to eliminate measles are having a major impact on the incidence of this disease, that at the end of 1993 the Region of the Americas reported the lowest number of cases in its history, and that transmission may have been interrupted in several countries or areas (e.g., Chile, Cuba, and the English-speaking Caribbean countries);

Considering that efforts to eliminate neonatal tetanus have been very successful and that the Region has reached the goal set by the World Summit for Children of less than one case per 1,000 live births at the regional level;

Realizing that immunization coverage levels have continued to increase in most of the countries, reaching a regional level of 80% in the last two years for all the vaccines being administered (DPT, polio, measles, BCG, and TT):

Considering that strategies are being developed for controlling hepatitis B and rubella, and that the possibility of introducing new vaccines—for example, a vaccine against Haemophilus influenzae b—in national immunization programs is now being considered by several of the Member States:

Noting that these developments have contributed enormously to the overall strengthening of the health infrastructure in all countries; and

Recognizing that it will be a major challenge in the future to maintain and further increase immunization coverage in order to reach the goal of 95% by the year 2000, and that the introduction of new vaccines will have to be preceded by major shifts in health policies toward more preventive activities,

Resolves:

1. To congratulate all the Member States, their health authorities, their health workers, and the communities themselves on their continuing commitment and efforts toward attainment of the historic accomplishment represented by the eradication of poliomyelitis from the Western Hemisphere, as well as other major advances in their immunization programs.

2. To thank the agencies involved in this effort, particularly the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), Rotary International, and the Canadian Public Health Association (CPHA), as well as many other national organizations, for their support, without which it would have been impossible to achieve these goals, and to request that they maintain and increase their contributions to the program in order to ensure that efforts to meet the new challenges are similarly successful.

3. To thank the Governments of Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, France, Italy, and Sweden for their support of national efforts to control and eliminate measles.

4. To establish the regional goal of elimination of measles by the year 2000 and urge the Member Governments to make every effort to achieve this goal as soon as possible.

5. To call on all the Member States to continue to give high priority to this program in order to ensure that the human and financial resources needed for implementing the actions outlined in the progress report, in particular funds for the purchase of vaccines, are made available in their national budgets and are allocated especially to those areas or populations at greatest risk for the target diseases. In this respect, it is of the utmost importance that:

(a) National commissions for the certification of poliomyelitis eradication continue to monitor the poliomyelitis surveillance indicators in their own countries until the world is certified polio-free;

(b) The acute flaccid paralysis surveillance system now in place be expanded to cover illnesses with fever and rash, including laboratory support, as part of the efforts to increase the possibility of eliminating measles;

(c) Vaccination of women of childbearing age in areas identified to be at risk for tetanus be accelerated in order to ensure that every child is born to an immune mother and will not be at risk of contracting neonatal tetanus;

(d) Support be provided for the efforts of the countries and institutions that are attempting to incorporate into their national vaccination program other vaccines, such as the hepatitis B, rubella, mumps, Haemophilus influenzae b, and meningococcal meningitis, ensuring that the greatest consideration is given to the epidemiologic relevance of this incorporation and that its financial implications are analyzed, so that the success obtained with other vaccines and with measures applied to improve vaccination coverage in the Region with respect to the EPI vaccines is not jeopardized;

(e) In regard to the preceding subparagraph, the acquisition of additional funds from different sources be promoted to enable the countries of the Region to enjoy the benefits of the scientific advances worldwide in the field of prevention, without affecting the basic scheme;

(f) Comprehensive care models for children be promoted to permit immunizations to be integrated as effectively as possible into growth and development activities, in order to decrease as much as possible the missed opportunities and promote systematic immunization in the network of services.

6. To request the Director to:

(a) Continue monitoring the maintenance of poliomyelitis eradication in the Americas until the world is certified polio-free;

(b) Search for additional resources to increase the funds assigned to the Measles Elimination Fund established by the XXXVII Meeting of the Directing Council in 1993, in order to ensure that the national initiatives under way in several of the countries will have the support needed in order to consolidate present gains toward the elimination of this disease;

(c) Stimulate increased participation by the collaborating agencies through the work of national interagency coordinating committees and the monitoring of national plans of action.

September 1994 OD 266, 143

CSP24.R17 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Having reviewed the report on acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) in the Americas (Document CSP24/18 and Add. I);

Recalling Resolution WHA46.37 of May 1993<sup>1</sup> and its subsequent follow-up in May 1994,<sup>2</sup> in which the World Health Assembly proposed and endorsed, respectively, the establishment of a joint, cosponsored United Nations Program on AIDS;

Considering that HIV transmission and the AIDS pandemic continue to grow globally as well as in the countries of the Region of the Americas, and that this situation requires a more intensive, long-term, effective, and sustainable intersectoral response;

Reaffirming that dealing with the intersectoral implications of AIDS is primarily a national responsibility in which all sectors must play their respective roles, with the appropriate leadership of the health sector; and

Recognizing the continued need for joint, coordinated efforts involving all relevant sectors of society, as well as multilateral and bilateral technical and financial cooperation agencies, in the prevention of HIV infection, AIDS, and other sexually transmitted diseases at the national, regional, and global levels,

Resolves:

1. To endorse the implementation of the new joint, cosponsored United Nations Program on AIDS in the Region of the Americas, taking advantage of the existing regional structures of the participating agencies and respecting the sovereignty of the countries.
2. To urge the Governments to adopt, jointly with international health agencies, common strategies and messages on HIV/AIDS prevention.
3. To express its conviction that the technical responsibility lies with the health agencies at the national, regional, and global levels.
4. To urge the Member States to support, establish, or reinforce mechanisms to ensure effective national coordination of all national, multilateral, and bilateral efforts to fight HIV infection, AIDS, and sexually transmitted diseases in the countries of the Americas.
5. To request the Director to:
  - (a) Continue to support efforts to prevent and control HIV infection, AIDS, and sexually transmitted diseases in the Region of the Americas, and in particular, to prepare a proposal for a regional plan of action for the elimination of congenital syphilis to be presented to the Executive Committee at its 116th Meeting, for adoption by the Directing Council;
  - (b) Continue to consult with the other agencies participating in the new joint, cosponsored United Nations Program on AIDS about a reasonable balance among the principal health problems of the Region, developing a mutually acceptable means of implementing that program in the Region of the Americas, including the establishment of a coordinating mechanism that will ensure the participation of other inter-American institutions and partners in the Region;

(c) Prepare a proposal to develop programs to promote healthy sexual practices.

CSP24.R18 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Having seen the PAHO/ECLAC report presented in Document CSP24/20, "Health, Social Equity, and Changing Production Patterns in Latin America and the Caribbean";

Recognizing the mutually reinforcing relationship among health, health care, and the socioeconomic and political development of the American countries; and

Taking into consideration the resolution adopted on this subject by the XXV Session of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean at Cartagena de Indias, Colombia, on 27 April 1994, which recommended to PAHO and ECLAC that this report be submitted to a Special Meeting of Ministers of Economy and Health to be held during the XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Resolves::

1. To urge the Member States to:

(a) Disseminate this report and promote debate thereon among representatives of government agencies, parliaments, universities, and society in general with a view to strengthening national commitment to the attainment of equity in health and development;

(b) Incorporate the basic elements of the PAHO/ECLAC proposal in agendas and policies on national development, so that health will be incorporated as both a focus and a condition for development with equity.

2. To encourage ongoing collaboration by the PAHO and ECLAC secretariats in the dissemination, refinement, and implementation of this proposal, particularly insofar as it refers to the monitoring, evaluation, and formulation of policy, and that efforts be made to extend this collaboration to other bilateral and multilateral organizations.

3. To ask the Director, within the limits of available resources, to support the implementation of this proposal by the Member States.

CSP24.R19 The XXIV Pan American Sanitary Conference,

Having examined the document presented by the Director on the monitoring and evaluation of the strategies of health for all by the year 2000 (Document CSP24/21); and

Considering the commitments assumed by the WHO Member States at the Forty-fifth World Health Assembly (Resolution WHA45.4, 1992)<sup>1</sup> on the presentation of monitoring reports,

Resolves::

1. To approve the document presented by the Director and request him to submit it to WHO as the regional report on the third monitoring of progress in the application of the strategies of health for all by the year 2000 and primary health care.
2. To request WHO to conduct an exhaustive review of the instruments utilized in the monitoring and evaluation, and especially the process employed in the countries to implement the policies, plans, and programs consistent with the strategies of health for all and primary health care.
3. To urge the Member States of the Region to renew their commitment to the strategies of health for all by the year 2000 and primary health care, since they are the fundamental conceptual framework for improving the health situation in the countries and continue to be a proposal that is socially equitable, politically viable, technically feasible, and within the economic reach of the countries.
